Education and Development

Masters Course
Spring Semester 2019
(7.5 ECTS)

Course Requirements and Grading

General Introduction

Course Content

The course deals with education and development based on colonial and neocolonial conditions. International comparisons are explored through postcolonial theories on development in different countries with a special emphasis on feminist perspectives. Furthermore, development theories on human capital and human capabilities are processed in relation to the role of education for economic, social and sustainable development.

Learning Outcomes

After having completed the course, the student will be able to:

- account for the history of developmental theories in relation to current theory in the field,
- analyze education and development policy based on theoretical perspectives
- critically analyze the role of education systems in development processes in a globalized world.

Activities

The course contains compulsory instruction which combines lectures, workshops, discussions and group work to achieve the learning outcomes. Included in the course is obligatory presentation of students own examination as well as critical review of another student’s examination task. Students are required to attend 80% of the compulsory course sessions. Student absences of more than 20% of the course sessions must be compensated via additional course assignments.
Knowledge control and examination

The course is examined through individual written assignment. Each course participant shall submit a course paper assignment that shows her/his abilities and capacities in critically examining a specific area of Education and Development. Further instructions of the course paper assignment and opposition paper shall be given separately.

Beyond a written assignment students must have attended at least 80% of all compulsory course sessions. Students with more than 40% absence from the compulsory course session must retake the course.

Assessment is based on:
- active participation in the lectures, group work sessions, and seminars,
- quality of the submitted course paper

Students who fail the examination, do not submit a course paper or do not submit their course paper in time have to do a second examination at a later date. These course participants will be asked to complete a new assignment with a new deadline that will be given by the course leader after that the first examination has been completed.

Ethical issues

Academic honesty and integrity must be respected. A reference list and proper citation of literature, including page numbers, and of other sources, is a requirement for all assignments. The course examination is based on the quality of the course paper, including the references and citations.

Any act of plagiarism is taken seriously.

Plagiarism is an act of fraud that involves stealing someone else’s work, for example:
1) copying texts from other sources without giving proper citation;
2) failing to put quotation marks in for direct quotations;
3) incorrect information about the source; and
4) paraphrasing without proper citation.

Self-plagiarism is also seen as an act of fraud. It is not allowed to use texts that you have written yourself and that have been examined as part of other university courses and present them as assignments for examination in a new course. This is referred to as self-plagiarism and is in the same way as other types of plagiarism taken seriously by Stockholm University.

It is important that you understand the seriousness of the offence. At Stockholm University, plagiarism is taken seriously and will be reported to the University Disciplinary Board with a possible consequence that the student will be suspended from their studies for up to 6 months. Please read the following webpages to learn more about Regulations for Disciplinary Matters at Stockholm University:
